1. Nature of the tasks

You will be involved in a significant piece of work assessing the current EU legislation on European securities markets and market infrastructure. Your tasks will be to advise the head of unit on ways to reform the functioning of MiFID II in the areas of securities and derivatives trading. You will focus on the operation of equity and derivatives trading platforms in the European Union, an assessment of euro denominated hedging instruments and the operation of the securities markets regulatory environment, notably the issues of dark pools versus so-called lit trading, the double volume cap and other issues linked to trade transparency. In most of your tasks, you will be working as part of a small team dedicated to exploring potential reform. For certain projects, we would rely on you to lead the efforts of a small team.

Ideally, you will have hands-on experience in securities trading or the regulation of the trading environment. You will also be a good fit if you have experience in adjacent areas of expertise, such as the regulation of initial public offerings, the prospectus, market abuse or short selling.

We like the members of our team to be self-starters who work well within an environment made of small project teams. We would like you to take responsibility for a project and will rely on you to design and test appropriate policies on your own initiative once the overall aims of the project have been defined. A good command of spoken and written English is a pre-requisite, as this is the language in which documents will be drafted.
