

Geographies of Taste: Italy and Africa between Culture and Sharing

Cultural Dialogue between Italy and Africa on Food and Gastronomy

Date: 11 February 2026

Time: 9:30 a.m. – 1:00 p.m.

Venue: Istituto della Enciclopedia Italiana Treccani

Food and gastronomy represent a universal language, capable of weaving together memory, identity, and the future. This initiative arises from the desire to highlight the role of food as a cultural bridge between Italy and the diverse contexts and realities of the African continent. The aim is to promote the intangible heritage linked to food, emphasizing its cultural, economic, and sustainable potential.

This event marks the inaugural moment of a broader pathway that will unfold throughout the year through seminars, meetings, and thematic initiatives, with the participation of experts, researchers, and key figures identified for each of the three sessions of the program outlined below. These events, along with those to follow, will offer opportunities for in-depth discussion and exchange among different forms of knowledge, bringing together academic, entrepreneurial, and cultural expertise from both sides of the Mediterranean.

10:40 – 11:40 a.m.

SESSION II – Food as a Tool for Global Sustainability

(Nutrition, Climate, Shared Future)

This session will address food as a shared responsibility and a common future. Discussions will focus on sustainable practices, environmental protection, and food justice, through a perspective that brings together Italian and African traditional knowledge. The goal is to reflect on how food culture can guide international cooperation and the construction of a fair and shared future.

Speakers:

- Ambassador Nosipho Nausica-Jean-Jezile, Ambassador of South Africa to Italy and President of the Southern African Development Community
- Ambassador Josefa Leonel Corria Sacko, Ambassador of Angola to Italy, former Commissioner for Agriculture, Rural Development and Sustainable Environment at the African Union Commission
